Think of the Windows operating system, and you will think of all the applications that come with it. Every time you press the 'start button' you have access to a plethora of programmes that make life in your computer more comfortable. If you are more of a traditionalist, then you may be interested in Linux. Although it is nowhere near as powerful as the Windows operating system, it is an OS that will provide you with the most effective operating system for your PC. The Linux operating system is, for lack of a better word, user friendly. It allows you to customise and modify your operating system how you want it to be. also give a very positive reaction. Even though they are very expensive, they are well worth the investment. And a final note, the camera does not have to be attached to a tripod to prevent camera shake. In this series of images, the image before was taken with a camera attached to a tripod. A camera not attached to a tripod is used to take the subsequent images. The first image was taken with a camera attached to a tripod, and the last two images were taken with a camera not attached to a tripod. Summary The Sigma 150
